National Retirement Security Week 2019

The week of October 20-26 is National Retirement Security Week (NRSW). The inspiration for NRSW comes from the people at the National Association of Government Defined Compensation Administrators (NAGDCA), as they continue to encourage people to save for a secure retirement. NAGDCA works with plan sponsors and pension plans to keep people engaged in saving for retirement so that their financial future isn't left in someone else's hands. If you'd like to learn a little more about why it's so important to start saving now, check out the video at this link.

To help people start and continue saving for retirement, Ohio Deferred Compensation provides a wide array of services and saving options. Maybe you've heard of target date funds and would like to learn more about what they have to offer. If so take a look at this link. Getting started early can have a major impact on what you eventually have available at retirement and you can learn more about that here. It also makes sense to tailor your saving strategy based on your age and timeline to retirement. For those savers under 35, NAGDCA created a video for you here. For those people in the 35-50 age group, go here. And if you're 50 or above, take a look here. The idea is to provide people with information and resources wherever they are in their retirement savings journey.

Many people aren't saving enough or at all for retirement and when you consider that you may live as long in retirement as you spent in the workforce, you realize that is a problem. If you take a look here, you can see statistics about current retirement saving rates. Once you realize how much of your life you'll spend in retirement, it might help you make the decision to start saving now, instead of waiting until you're closer to retirement.

If you'd like to get started on your own journey, visit the Ohio Deferred Compensation website at Ohio457.org or call our Service Center at 877-644-6457.
